Mineral Makeup - What's All The Hype About?

By Michelle Fryer

Mineral Makeup is what everyone is talking about! You may wonder why all the hype about it?

The trend on Mineral Makeup isn't necessarily "new", it is just becoming more mainstream as people are becoming more informed on the harmful effects of certain cosmetic ingredients.

Mineral Makeup is by far better for your skin.

There are different types of Mineral Makeup: Sheer Tint, Liquid to Powder, Pressed Powder and Loose Powder. The loose powder form is the most commonly used, but for those of you that don't like the loose form there are other options.

The main difference between the loose powder form and the pressed is that the loose form is the purest form available (Titanium Oxide and Zinc Oxide are both natural sunscreens and Mica and Iron Oxides are also natural ingredients from the earth) When you put the minerals in a pressed or liquid from other ingredients are needed to keep the minerals "together." These other ingredients are not bad for you, it's just not as "pure". Here are some popular brands: Shel Cosmetics, Bare Escentuals, and Neutrogena Mineral Sheers. It seems like everyone now has a mineral foundation of some form or another, so test them out and see what you like... Your skin will thank you!

The Look of Bridal Makeup

By Michelle Fryer

Just as fashion trends come and go, so does the look of Bridal Makeup. Gone are the days of brightly colored lips, heavy eye shadows and layers of foundation.

Today's Bride is looking for that natural radiant glow that says 'Blushing Bride'. Skin should look fresh and natural with a flawless finish. Whether it is dewy or matte the foundation should blend seamlessly with the neck and chest. Most Brides are requesting foundations that are mineral based; which let the skin breathe and they photograph beautifully.

The biggest trend though is that the eyes are the focal point of the face. Soft pink, taupe and cool gray shadows with smudged eyeliner look stunning. A few coats of mascara and some false lashes are the finishing touches. For an evening wedding the eyes can have more dimensions, but still the makeup should not take away from the eyes themselves. With the eyes being the main focus, cheeks should be glowing in a soft pink or a subtle bronzer for beach weddings. Lips are muted colors of pink and rose and tinted glosses are very popular as well.
